PRESIDENT'S WELCOME

Dear Delegates,

It is with great excitement that I write to introduce NAAUC's 52nd National Conference. After some long years without a national event I, along with the whole NAAUC team, am thrilled to be bringing back our premier event of the year.

NAAUC, like residences across the country, faced its fair share of difficulties over the preceding years, but also like residences across the country, the strength of our dedicated team, focus on achieving our goals despite limitations and commitment to our core values led us through a difficult time.

Not only will this be our first National Conference in several years, but it also will be only the fourth time NAAUC has held a summer conference and the second time this has been done nationally. NAAUC believes strongly in the power of evolving communities, reframing challenges as opportunities and seizing the openings that come our way. We hope as student leaders engaging with NAAUC that you might see the benefits of such an approach, be a part of something new and exciting, and perhaps build elements of this mentality into your own leadership style.

NAAUC's Conference is a unique opportunity for you to find likeminded leaders from residences across Australia. Like life living on campus at university, our National Conference blends the deep thinking and reflection of educated individuals with the enjoyment, fun and networking opportunities that come from well planned and operated socials events. NAAUC is exceptionally proud of the extensive great feedback we receive and it stands as a testament to the incredible value of this opportunity.

As we look to the future and approach National Conference and another year in leadership, I encourage delegates to embrace the learning opportunities that will come their way. Each of you in leadership positions are the custodians of your roles – the next in line of many people who have come before, and many people who will come after. While you are taking on this added burden in positions of responsibility, I encourage you to remember where you find yourselves in your long journeys. You are students, and you are learning leaders.

Take the opportunities that present themselves, including NAAUC National Conference, as an opportunity to build you own skills, explore new ideas and develop your character.

I am beyond excited to meet you as delegates, and as future leaders for your communities.

President,
JACK AGNEW He/Him

CONFERENCE DIRECTOR'S WELCOME

Hi Delegates!

We are so excited to be a part of NAAUC's 52nd National Conference! After two years of incredible State Conferences we are thrilled to bring things back bigger and better than ever. We can't wait to show you what our return to National Conference is going to look like and what to expect for this comeback.

In your leadership positions there is a potential to create history at your residence, shaping narratives for the year ahead, and creating differences that will last for years to come. NAAUC wants to help you succeed in this! Whether it is through the number of Academics on offer or the social program, we aim to create a conference that will empower you to move into your positions and get ready to be your best. It is our hope that attending our conference will IGNITE a passion to pursue something bigger than yourselves within your college. Encouraging you to constantly strive to help improve our cultures internally and that of the wider community.

Alongside the Academic Program, our social program planning is underway as we speak. This will be executed by our incredible team known as the Working Party who are creating a line-up of tailored events that will help facilitate great times and experiences within the beautiful host city. We hope our diverse and inclusive calendar of social events will leave you with new friendships and memories that you will remember and treasure for years to come.

We are so excited to meet every one of you and can't wait to bring the National Conference back with a bang!

HOST UNIVERSITY

We are so excited to be hosting our National Conference this year at St John's College, within the University of Queensland in Meanjin (Brisbane).

UNIVERSITY OF QUEENSLAND

HOST RESIDENCE

ST JOHN'S

COLLEGE

St Johns is a leading college within the ICC in Meanjin, home to roughly 300 students. St John's College was initially founded in 1911, celebrating its 110th year anniversary in 2021 and became co-educational, welcoming women 32 years ago in 1990.

LOGISTICS

In 2022 the National Conference will be hosted by St John's College within the University of Queensland from the 27th of November - 4th of December. The last event of the National Conference is the NAAUC Ball held on the evening of the 3rd of December. There are no activities scheduled for the 4th of December and delegates should plan to travel home on this day.

ARRANGING TRAVEL

Delegates should fly into Brisbane Airport on Sunday the 27th of November and aim to be at St John's College between 9am - 1pm. Delegates should factor in between 30 - 45 minutes of travel from the Airport to St John's so we advise that delegates arrive into Brisbane Airport no later than 12 pm. Breakfast shall be provided on the 4th of December however no activities are planned on this day and final check out will be by 10am.

TRANSPORTATION

Transportation costs are not included within the Conference Ticket and each delegate must arrange their own transportation to and from the National Conference.

There are a number of travel options from Brisbane Airport to St John's. These include Uber, Taxis, and The AirTrain which arrives into Central Station and delegates would then either need to continue onto a Bus or get an Uber or Taxi from there. If delegates are planning on travelling via Public Transport (AirTrain) Translink Journey Planner (<https://jp.translink.com.au/plan-your-journey/journey-planner>) is available to help plan this.

BENEFITS TO YOUR RESIDENCE

NAAUC strives to assist residences to become the best that they can possibly be. Student leaders have great influence on the day-to-day life of each resident. The 2022 conference has the unique advantage of allowing residences to send its elected leaders for 2023, fully preparing them for their upcoming roles.

NAAUC has been in the industry of student professional development for over 50 years, and are proud of the professional nature of all the content we deliver. Each year we are happy to boast an array of guest speakers who are industry professionals in their fields. Not only will delegates learn from other students' experiences, but also from leading professionals around the nation.

The NAAUC team has a combined total of over 30 years experience living in residences across Australia, meaning that the academics delivered during conference are tailored to deliver tangible skills, and relevant information to all delegates.

Our aim for the 2022 conference is to deliver tangible skills; sending delegates home with clear plans and ideas for their leadership role in 2023. Idea sharing at a national level is beneficial for delegates to connect with one another, and gain deeper insight into how our unique problems are often quite similar. We look forward to our most tangible, leader focused conference yet.

IGNITE ACADEMICS

We are gearing up for the much anticipated return to National Conference, and taking this opportunity to renew and reinvigorate our signature NAAUC academic program. In 2022, we're inspired to develop and deliver a dynamic academic program that empowers delegates, spurs passion for leadership, and engages the diverse perspectives of students from residential communities across the country. We have created a program which responds to the evolving needs and contemporary challenges that come with living on campus. As our communities begin to emerge from the difficulties of the past two years, we are eagerly looking forward towards the future - the next generation of leaders, the clear slate of expectations, traditions and opportunities - and we are ready to light the fuse.

This year's theme for Conference is IGNITE! The 2022 academic program is prepared to spark many important conversations surrounding the nature of residences today, why we become leaders, and how we can face the challenges that arise to build better, more positive communities. With each new day of conference, delegates will encounter and explore another pillar of the residential experience that we at NAAUC believe are critical areas of discussion for leaders on campus: Purpose, Culture, Community, Team, and Passion. Together, this theme and these pillars have been designed specifically to equip delegates with the necessary skills to confront the many nuances of residential leadership.

With a range of academic seminars, workshops, panel discussions and keynote lectures, we hope to empower and educate delegates across conference week. NAAUC is committed to providing relevant, high-quality academic content; in consultation with research and industry professionals, our experienced NAAUC team members have created a catalogue of valuable academic seminars. Delegates will also hear from a lineup of knowledgeable and experienced keynote speakers and expert panellists, sharing their unique voices and perspectives on topics such as innovation, culture, leadership and much more.

The academic program for this year's National Conference is not just about reflecting on the problems that face our residences - it is about igniting a passion in leaders to pursue positive and sustainable solutions, grow in their potential, and build the confidence to create change.

We can't wait to help equip, challenge and inspire you to seize your year in leadership!

DAY ONE

Monday | PURPOSE

The first day of the academic program takes delegates back to the basics. Together, we will explore the initial purpose of why students choose to live on campus, and why we decide to become leaders at our residences. The day encourages delegates to reflect on their individual strengths, weaknesses, character and leadership style. Finally, we will begin to unpack and understand the strength of vulnerability in leadership.

How we identify our purpose as leaders on day one will underpin how we navigate the remainder of topics throughout the week.

- The Truth About Leadership
 - Character Building: Your Value Statement
 - Residential Life: A Holistic Experience
 - Supporting Our Leaders: Self-Care & Wellbeing
 - Vulnerability: Embracing the Strength of Adversity

DAY TWO

Tuesday | CULTURE

The second day of the academic program will challenge delegates to confront some of the most pertinent issues which face their communities. From peer and expert lead conversations surrounding drug and alcohol abuse, sex positivity and the prevalence of sexual violence, to gender inclusivity and toxic gender behaviours, we will identify how unchecked cultures can allow for harmful activities that jeopardise a positive residential experience. Delegates are asked to come with an open mind, and to critically evaluate the cultural frameworks of their residence. This day also calls for delegates to look at diversity within their residences beyond face value, and strive to create a more inclusive culture within their community. We aim to break down common stereotypes and misconceptions, and provide practical solutions that delegates can promote to help foster inclusion and instigate positive culture change within their residences.

- Culture On Campus – Panel Discussion
 - The Cultural Audit: Evaluating Traditions on Res
 - Addiction, Drugs & Alcohol
 - Blurred Lines: Fostering Positive Sex Culture on Res
 - Mind The Gap: Gender Diversity on Res
 - Queer on Res
 - Cultural Diversity on Res
 - Accessibility on Res

DAY THREE

Wednesday | COMMUNITY

The third day of the academic program encourages delegates to reflect on the practices and structures that bring students together within their residence. This day centres around community - arguably the most universal facet of the residential experience - and how we can advance our communities through building positive relationships and developing proactive solutions.

Delegates will draw from a range of topics such as cultivating positive relationships with staff, fostering connection and diversity to build stronger cohorts, and using social media to elevate our reach outside of residences. These discussions will equip delegates with tangible methods to help them grow more holistic and inclusive residential communities.

- Community Changemakers – Panel Discussion
 - Working With Residential Staff
 - Head First: Maintaining Mental Health
 - Creating Community: Diversity, Privilege and Intersectionality
 - Residential Relationships: Building Inter-residential Bonds
 - Welcome Week & Moving onto Res
 - What To Do When You F Up
 - Sustainability on Res
 - Beyond Our Walls: Reaching Our Broader Community

DAY FOUR

Thursday | TEAM

The fourth day of the academic program focuses on the “how to” of residential leadership. On day four, it is about equipping delegates with role-specific skills, logistical and operational know-how, and effective teamwork strategies to have the confidence and knowledge to be active initiators of change within their team and residences.

This day is very practical and is specially designed to target knowledge gaps and fill those gaps immediately.

Operating Professionally
Strategic Planning & Effective Changeover
Event Planning & Risk Management
Operating Effectively as a Team
Responsibilities of an Office Bearer
Pastoral Care & Duty of Care
Innovative Initiatives on Res

DAY FIVE

Friday | PASSION

The final day of the conference aims to culminate and consolidate all of the ideas, questions, skills and solutions delegates have generated across the week of conference, and funnel them into something we like to call, The Pitch.

The Pitch challenges students to consider all they have learned, identify an issue or area of improvement within their residence, and draft ideas for a new practice or initiative that they take away and implement. Following a set framework delivered by the NAAUC team, delegates will design a step-by-step solution that will help improve the residential experience within their communities. Finally, delegates will pitch their ideas to each other and the NAAUC Team, and troubleshoot solutions to potential constraints or problems they may face.

SOME PREVIOUS SUCCESSFUL PITCHES INCLUDE:

A “Safe & Sexy” week which promotes education and advocacy around sex positivity and sexual wellbeing, open to all colleges at UQ.

– St. John’s College, QLD

An RA structure to bolster the student executive in providing pastoral care for the students on each corridor.

– Queen’s College, VIC

Facilitating a mental health panel with experts from the field, including a NAAUC Representative, with each of the four halls in attendance.

– Gatton Halls Of Residence, QLD

SOCIAL OVERVIEW

The social program at our conference is brought to you by the fabulous Working Party, delivering a variety of events for delegates to enjoy. Alongside the array of guest speakers and diverse academic program lined up for the National Conference, delegates should be ready to get involved in an exciting social program. Each day will include a different event, aiming to provide a variety of engaging activities and opportunities to network.

As an organisation, NAAUC aims to create events designed to be inclusive for all delegates, no matter where you are from or the interests you hold. The team has a wealth of knowledge and experience when it comes to running events of all shapes and sizes, whether it involves alcohol being available or if it's considered a 'dry event.' Our social program at National Conference is used as a tool to show how an event can be successful and inclusive using various engaging activities as opposed to constant repetition of old event habits.

These events within conference will demonstrate what we preach about event planning, displaying innovation within an engaging and inclusive nature. It is our hope and aim that delegates can gain inspiration from the program provided, leading to the seamless adaptation to incorporate similar events within any residential culture.

Coming back from two years of State Conferences, the team are full of ideas and excited to bring a social program bigger and better than before. Strap yourselves in and get ready for the fun!

2022 SCHOLARSHIPS

NAAUC prides itself on promoting diversity in conversation and ensuring equal opportunity for all. To facilitate this, we offer several scholarships. These range from a partial cover to fully funded. This is to enable high quality candidates who are interested in student leadership and furthering their residential communities to attend our National Conference. Our scholarships are also designed to maximise personal and professional gain from attending the conference.

Please note that some scholarships only cover the cost of the conference ticket. Travel and personal costs would need to be covered by the respective recipient in these situations.

Applications for scholarships and bursaries close on the 25th of October at the close of business. Please email your application to the Secretary, Evelyn Unwin Tew, at secretary@naauc.edu.au.

All scholarships require a written statement outlining your suitability for the scholarship and what you hope to achieve by attending the NAAUC 2022 National Conference. An outline of the scholarships available this year can be found below. For more information on eligibility, application process, and requirements email our Secretary.

Please note that all scholarship applications are to be made by the individual, not a Residence as a whole. Multiple students from the same residences may apply for the same scholarship.

If you have any other queries please contact the Secretary.

Community Scholarship

This scholarship is directed towards people who are high achievers within our residential communities. This can be through academic, sporting, or cultural/community excellence and contributions. It is to assist those people who's financial circumstances additionally hinders their access to the National Conference.

- Covers the cost of 1x National Conference Ticket

Equity Scholarship

NAAUC believes in creating communities that are more diverse, inclusive and representative of our broader society. We believe that we hold a significant responsibility to make university campuses and residences more welcoming and accessible. This is to aid in ensuring that everyone has a place within residential communities across Australia. This scholarship aims to assist in facilitating students within disadvantaged communities in attending our National Conference, to share their experiences and ideas and to engage in discussion with student leaders from around Australia. This may include, but is not limited to, individuals from groups such as LGBTQIA+, POC, people with disabilities, and First Nations Peoples.

- Covers the cost of 1x National Conference Ticket

Changemakers Scholarship

Supported by NAAUC Alumni

The Changemakers Scholarship is for a student who is keen to undertake a formal project looking into an area of research which they believe is of importance in the residential sector. Previous scholarship recipients have investigated topics such as sex education in Australian residences and diversity in residential student leadership teams.

- Covers the cost of 1x National Conference Ticket

Travel Bursary

The NAAUC Travel Bursary is in place to provide additional assistance to delegates traveling to the National Conference. We understand that travel costs can often prevent many students from realising opportunities and experiences. The Travel Bursary amount is contingent upon communication with the NAAUC Executive Committee and contributed amounts are at the discretion of the NAAUC Executive Committee. Applications made for a Travel Bursary in conjunction with a NAAUC Scholarships will be given higher consideration.

CONFERENCE BID

Nothing compares to the feeling of seeing 200 faces speechless from an inspiring guest speaker, or a room full of delegates having the time of their life at an event, all the while knowing you help make it possible. That is chance you have before right now - to put in an expression of interest to host the 2023 NAAUC National Conference!

The NAAUC National Conference location each and host residences each year is determined by the NAAUC Executive. All interested parties submit expressions of interest, outlining the unique benefits of their residence. Shortlisted candidates will be asked to put in a formal bid. In the past, the winning residences have not been chosen based on their exotic location or exciting social calendar, but demonstrated their exceptional organisational skills by presenting a well laid out, informative and concise presentation. If you're thinking of bidding, your preparation should start now!

All expressions of interest should be submitted to the Secretary, Evelyn Unwin Tew at secretary@naauc.edu.au. Expressions of interest open on the 3rd of October and close on the 17th of October by close of business.

YOUR BIDDING TO DO LIST:

Brainstorm

Think about how you would like the conference to be run. Have a brainstorm session about social events, the structure of the conference, guest speakers and locations. Who are some famous or successful Alumni from your residence or university? What makes your residence unique? What exciting events could NAAUC hold at your residence? Investigate, flesh it out, and compile it all into your bid.

Approach Your Residence

Not only do you have to sell your bid to delegates, but you also need to sell your bid to a residence. The more you show your residential staff that you are serious and that you have the support of other residents and committees, the more chances you have of winning their support, and the support of NAAUC! Be sure to discuss the accommodation and dining costs, logistics and any other matters you feel would be raised from an administrative point of view. If your residence alone is too small to host the conference, you might think to approach a partner residence to co-host the conference. In order to place a successful bid, you must have the written support of the residential staff. Check with your Head of residence if you can proceed to contact potential guest speakers and sponsors and you can ask them if they have any contacts you can use.

Rally The Troops

NAAUC National Conference cannot run without an awesome Working Party and a dedicated team! Spread the word amongst passionate and interested people that you are placing a bid, and encourage them to get involved. These people do not necessarily have to come from the host residences, but it's often beneficial to engage nearby residences and their students in the conference planning process. Ask these people if they want to help in placing the bid, and encourage them to apply for positions when the time comes.

Time To Put It Together

Contact potential guest speakers, venues and sponsors. If you can present a bid showing you already have financial support, interest from guest speakers and venues it shows that you have considered the logistics, and have put together a very attractive bid.

Submit Application

POLICIES

NAAUC has a comprehensive list of policies that apply to our National Conference. This includes, but is not limited to, our alcohol and drug policy. All delegates are required to sign our alcohol and drug policy prior to attending the National Conference. NAAUC has a strict policy regarding the fact that no alcohol can be brought into the National Conference.

While some events will include the service of alcohol, delegates are not permitted to bring any external alcohol into the week and therefore cannot pre before any NAAUC events.

Additionally, NAAUC National Conference is a drug free event. Delegates are discouraged from taking drugs during the week and are not permitted to bring any illicit substances to the National Conference. If any of these policies are breached the team shall respond accordingly at their discretion, this could include removal of a specific delegate/delegates from the National Conference, at the cost of the individual or their residence. If this occurs the option of refund on a ticket is not possible.

NAAUC ADDITIONAL OFFERINGS

MEMBERSHIPS

A NAAUC membership is a great way for your residence to get the most out of your engagement with NAAUC. Memberships include a range of benefits including discounted prices and access to member only services.

If you want more information regarding a NAAUC membership contact the NAAUC Secretary at secretary@naauc.edu.au

CONSULTING PROGRAM

What Is Involved In NAAUC's Consulting Program?

NAAUC operates a consulting program to allow student leaders and residents living on campus to get relevant, up to date and actionable advice. NAAUC team members are experienced in student leadership, and the residential experience, and are equipped to aid students living on campus to confront issues in their community, and build their homes in the best environment they can be.

Who Does NAAUC Consult For?

NAAUC consulting is primarily aimed at student leadership teams. This includes elected student bodies, residential advisor or pastoral care teams, academic tutors, and house coordinators. NAAUC consulting is also available for any resident living on campus. If residential community staff or administration wish to approach NAAUC, they are invited to meet with the NAAUC President at no cost.

What Will You Get?

We encourage any student from a residence who might be interested in NAAUC Consulting, or who is facing a problem they are uncertain about, to engage NAAUC in a free 30 minute exploratory conversation. In this conversation a NAAUC team member will meet to discuss the issue, and provide a breakdown of how NAAUC can help, as well as a recommendation for what kind of consultation would best assist you. From there, your residence can engage NAAUC in an official consultation.

Each tier of NAAUC's consultations will provide different benefits. As no two residences, and no two problems are the same, the offering NAAUC can provide to your residence will be unique. Broadly speaking, you can expect the following from NAAUC consultations;
